U. S. Patent 5,186,371 discloses a body mounted spare wheel carrier having a frame which swings about a vertical axis and carries a mechanism for manual lifting and lowering a spare wheel. The supporting frame engages a latch receptacle 24 fixedly mounted on the vehicle tailgate.

A distal end of the arm engages a second support associated with a second extension on a vehicle frame to provide adequate support of the spare wheel assembly carrying arm.

By way of background, U. S. Patent Application Publication 2003/0024958 discloses a spare wheel carrier intended for use on a military version of a sports utility
